

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

THE MILLIONAIRE'S DAUGHTER STILL

She Doesn't Just Fancy the Place—A Ten Minute Visit to Her Sick Mother—Kisses Her Sister and Brother and Talking With

New York, Sept. 15.—Coachman Schelling and his bride, into the aristocratic Mrs. Morosini, are still boarding at Warner's saloon on Ludlow street, Yonkers, where they were first boarding when Mr. Morosini refused to admit them to his home in Manhattan. The saloon was the boarding place of the coachman when he was in the employ of Mr. Morosini. Mrs. Schelling visited her husband at the saloon, but Mr. Schelling waited for her outside the door. When Mrs. Schelling failed to enter the home, When The Russian Ambassador called at the Morosini mansion to-day the old gentleman was in a tactful mood.

"I am at a loss to know what has come over my wife. She is crazy or I am. She came to me and said that she was going to leave me for another man. She said that I—d coachman Schelling was not good enough to stay any longer with her. She said that she was going to leave him at a time when he was not at home. I didn't want to leave any body but his mother. She

"Yes, I will talk to a Washington correspondent in just a minute," she said, stopping her work.

...turned to her younger sister and asked her to go to the door and see if the "brood" had returned. She turned to her brother, Attila, who was standing in the doorway with a look of gloomy acquiescence.

"Are you going to let them come in, giving me the chance to ask Attila?"

"I don't think you would like me," replied Victoria, bounding up the steps and slapping him around the neck and giving him a good shaking.

Then turning to the reporter as they left the grounds she said: "You know my husband is a very good man, but he is a little bit nervous, it is dreadful what I have to endure in this house. Everybody seems to be against me, and I am not getting on very well with my husband; but I am perfectly happy and will never separate from him. Father has been very kind to me, and I am sure I would not leave. I am too proud to take any money. Ernest is able to support me and I am sure I can do it." She turned to the reporter and said: "I know I can go on this stage."

"Is there any husband now," said the reporter, lighting up a pipe and looking at her near the lace near the house in which she was passing nervously. She greeted him with a look of indifference.

"The reporter is not quite the monster you think," said Victoria.

[illegible]

A crowd of men and boys ranged along the sidewalk, and the women and children watched with eager interest everything that went on within. Every few minutes some one of the crowd would be sent down town, doubtless to inform his less fortunate, but equally anxious acquaintance of the situation of affairs up to the house.

Mr. Morosini is somewhat improved to-day, but is yet out of danger. Despite Morosini's arrestment, which he intended to sell to the press, he has been able to get to Russia. His friends declare that he will be able to get to the United States, but direct brokers the Morosini affair is still the subject matter of gossip.

TO-MORROW'S REGATTA.

The Entries for the Canoe Club Regatta and Names of the Heats.

The following entries have been made for the 25th inst.

1. Sailing race—Annapolis, Commodore T. S. Wynkoop; Wanderer, Vice Commodore H. H. Dodge; Iola, W. E. Witherbee; Belle, E. W. Cady; Canvas Back, F. N. Moore; Potomac, H. H. Soule; Hob Roy, C. H. Calvert.

S. single paddling race—Analostan, Commodore Wenkrop; Wanderer, Vice Commodore Dodge; Iola, Arthur Brenan; Belle, E. W. Cady; Canvas Back, C. H. Calvert; Potomac, J. R. Lake; Rob Roy, F. N. Moore; Herald, D. S. Russell.

Cards of admission to the Annapolis boathouse can be obtained on application to any member of the Canoe club.

The Medical Chirurgical Society of the District of Columbia held its first annual meeting at the office of Dr. Heyburn, 1241 F street northwest, last evening, and was largely attended. It being the annual meeting, only routine business was transacted, though an

...expressing opinions were informally discussed. Considerable gratification was expressed at the good showing, numerically, financially, and otherwise of the society at the end of its first year. The following officers were elected to serve for the following year: President, Robert Keyburn, M. D.; vice presidents, D. S. Lamb, M. D., and Charles E. Mal-

Seaman, M. D.; Tremour, T. A.; Augusta, M. D.; board of censors, W. D. Hughes, M. D., L. A. Harvey, M. D., and H. A. Robinson, M. D. The following were appointed a committee on essays: W. H. Seaman, M. D., F. J. Shaud, M. D., and L. A. Harvey, M. D.

Col. George Soule, of New Orleans, gave the students of the Spencertian business college and their friends a powerful discourse upon the race, culture, and development of the human race last night. He gave brilliant illustrations from history to show how new truths had met with persecution and cruel maintained all the world could not stop their progress. For an hour he treated upon the magnificent machinery of the human body, and then, the ladies having permission to withdraw, he proceeded for an hour and a half to instruct the young men concerning the duties of their future.

Among the new names mentioned in connection with the vacancy occasioned by the death of Secretary Folger is that of L. P. Morton, of New York, minister to France, who is now on his way home. Assistant Secretary Charles E. Coon was yesterday designated by

1